Manning's Death.

ALBANY, N. Y., December 24.—Manning was conscious but little yesterday, only at intervals, but the physicians say this will increase the days as they have predicted.

ALBANY, N. Y., December 24.—Manning's condition this morning is the same as yesterday. He is conscious, recognizes his son James H., and has a very watchful eye at his bedside. He cannot articulate, but can make himself understood by signs. He has not had a wink of sleep since Thursday night, and is very restless. He has taken no nourishment since Thursday morning, and his pulse is very weak. Dr. Vander Veer says that Manning's death may occur at any moment.

DANIEL MANNING.

Mrs. Manning, widow of Albany, N. Y.

Thought is this hour of unutterable grief your sorrow is too sacred to be shared and too deep to be reached by words. EXECUTIVE MANSION, ALBANY, N. Y.

To Hon. Mrs. Manning:

My wife joins me in the sincerest sympathy with you in your grief. Mr. Manning's friends have not confined to one city or one state, but here in the city of his home, where he was best known and esteemed, there is the deepest sorrow. Permit me to express my own personal sympathy with you in the loss which you have sustained.

Admission of Dakota.

ST. PAUL, December 24.—The Pioneer Press this evening prints inquiries to members of the present congress asking their views on the admission of North and South Dakota, either as one state or two. This morning it published views from 76 members of the house, representing 25 states, and it concludes from the situation and 17 democrats that there is a strong probability of admitting the two states, each after the new census, if a bill for the purpose is introduced. The measure is backed by the people of Dakota.

Miners' Wages.

PITTSBURG, PA., December 24.—A committee of miners at Connellsville, in conference with General Manager Whitney today in reference to the wages for the forthcoming year. It is said the committee insisted on the same rates which the men are now receiving. It is not anticipated that the difficulty will be amicably settled, and in the event a general strike will be ordered.

Boys Whipped.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 24.—Paddy Ryan of the M'Auliff, heavy weight pugilistic party, fought a fifteen round battle for a purse of $1,000 with Jack Dempsey, of the Pacific coast, at Woodward's Pavilion, Mission street, this city, last night. It was a fierce contest, and lasted until 1:30 o'clock when the fight was declared a draw. There was some betting on the result, Ryan backers offering odds of $100 to $75 on their man. The California Athletic club, under whose auspices the fight occurred, will receive the gate money, which will amount to about $2,000.

Burglars Captured.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 24.—Two burglars, who gave their names as Frank Wilson and Thomas Ryan, were captured by Officer Ryan at his mercy, as the latter would not try to fight, and gave up the contest.

CHRISTMAS OF TO-DAY.

The Good Old Customs Being Revised and Improved.

Interesting Christmas Thoughts by Judge Tourgee.

He Says the Revised Edition Robs the Next Day

Of its Noblest Element by Striking out "Good Will."

[Copyrighted 1887.]

The custom of the Christmas-tide is the outgrowth of the instinct of the Babe of Bethlehem. Dead to the world, the heart of humanity throbs with the birth of the Divine Infant whose Christ and the poor of earth receive which Christ's human Father. The the benefactions of the rich. The rich and the poor meet on the ground of the Christ-child. The rich bring to the humble the gifts which they prize for the gratification of their children, and the poor bring to the rich the gifts which they prize for the same reason. The rich and the poor meet on the ground of the Christ-child. The rich bring to the humble the gifts which they prize for the gratification of their children, and the poor bring to the rich the gifts which they prize for the same reason.

This purpose of the Christ-story to possess the dwellers of the Occident has existed from its own. To the Eastern mind the child is but a means to an end. It does not matter how long the child may become a man or woman. The child-life is stored away in parental memory—a fond, sweet image which the future can never obliterate. The child is their all. It is more dear to them than life itself. Parents and fairy tales of the west. The east has only monsters and gnomes, malevolent giants dwelling in dens and caverns of darkness. The magical children—fairies and elves—all the host of sweet and beautiful diminutives which fill our childish fancy—all these are of the west. The greenwood and not the desert is their home. Even the gods of Indian creed, the swinging bench, the worn cup and the moccasin.

All this and much of Christian legend is the emblem of infantile sovereignty. He is the perfect type of the boy king, who comes to rule the realm of a western woman's heart—not because he represents the pranks of manhood, but because he is a child. So we have glorified the young child and his mother, giving her all womanly grace and blending with a sacred grace of her sorrowing Oriental adoration for the manchild she has born the full tide of western mother love for the infant of whose future she is jealous rather than exultant. We have made her the queen of Heaven. Lifting her out of the insignificance and inferiority with which the Orient veils the tender glory of womanhood. The patriarchal Virgin is Oriental. For her the west cares nothing. The immaculate conception is a fact of little importance to the Occidental mind. We are ready to accept the divinity of the Holy Babe without questioning. The vision of the Virgin Mother, the rapt exaltation of her response to the greeting of Elizabeth seem to us the natural and instinctive emotions of exultant motherhood while the Oriental receives them with a shiver of incredulity. The Oriental Christian even passes by the Babe of Bethlehem, puts Him aside upon the Virgin Mother, but yields his adoration to the Christ, the King, the God-man who died for all men.

At the very heart and core of all these sweet suggestions with which the home worshipping Occident has covered the mire does a event is the greeting of the angel host. We have painted them in the clouds, borne in and scattered abroad the glad tidings and decorated the walls of every Christian home. Every church has been adorned with the angelic message which engraved itself upon the heart of the Prince of Peace, especially the war is more than the same as all Dogmas:

"Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will among men."

There correlative and harmonious thoughts, constituting a complete system of Christian faith

"On earth, peace"

Among men, good will

These and especially the two have been the broad basis of Occidental Christianity. On them are built our ideas of personal right and individual liberty and equality.

"On earth, peace"

"Among men, good will"

Not merely pity, nor alms, nor charity in that debased sense that nails the poor box to the altar and sends the robed priest with solemn step and bended knee into the holy place, bearing the vessel of peace that constitute the offertory, but the righteous regard and heartfelt good will that underlie the thought of universal brotherhood.

And this thought—this angelic injunc

Nearly Forty Thousand Miners and Laborers Included.

Cigar Makers' Union Preparing for a Contest.

The Reading Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, December 24.—All of the Port Reading railroad employes, including engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen and others, have been ordered out on a strike. The order was issued at a meeting of the executive committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, held in this city last night. The order was sent to the Port Reading officials this morning.

No Interference with Passenger Trains.

PHILADELPHIA, December 24.—A conference of Reading railroad officials was held this morning, at which it was decided that no interference with passenger trains will be permitted by the striking employes. The Reading officials claim that they have a sufficient number of men to operate their passenger trains, and will not ask the assistance of the Reading strikers in doing so.

The Strike Ordered.

PHILADELPHIA, December 24.—A conference of Reading railroad officials and representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was held this morning, at which it was decided that no interference with passenger trains will be permitted by the striking employes. The Reading officials claim that they have a sufficient number of men to operate their passenger trains, and will not ask the assistance of the Reading strikers in doing so.

Cigar Makers Preparing for a Contest.

NEW YORK, December 24.—A meeting of the executive committee of the Cigar Makers' International union was held last night at the headquarters of the union, No. 144 Second avenue, to consider the situation in view of the strike of the Reading railroad employes. Only a few members of the committee were present, but they decided to issue a call for a meeting of the entire committee this evening, at which it is expected that the question of ordering a strike will be considered. The committee will also consider the question of issuing a call for a general meeting of the union, to be held next Sunday afternoon, at which the matter will be finally disposed of. It is said that the union is prepared to fight both the Reading railroad and the tenement house cigar manufacturers. There is a rumor afloat that manufacturers will not only return to the tenement house system but that a general reduction will be made about the first of the year, and that the union is prepared to fight both. It is feared now there may be a general strike, and that thousands of cigar makers will be soon out of work and dependent upon the union. The treasury of the union, however, can stand a long struggle as the union is one of the largest in the United States. The union at one time spent $30,000 on strikes in two years, and is fully prepared to enter the contest again with a full treasury.

COLUMBUS, Miss., December 24.—It has been snowing here all the afternoon, the heaviest snowfall ever seen in this section.

A Strike Broken.

BOSTON, December 24.—The jury in the contested will case of John Amory Cunningham, which has occupied two weeks of unsound mind, and that Mrs. Kendall, as well as Mr. Dexter, Calhoun's counsel and Roberts, a lawyer, had each received a similar reference. It is a victory for Mrs. Calhoun.

A New Road.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., December 24.—A charter was filed with the secretary of state today for the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Scott railroad company, with a capital stock of $1,000,000. The line is from Kansas City to the south line of the state on Joplin to South Coffeyville. It is a Union Pacific enterprise.

French Abandonment.

LONDON, December 24.—Advices from Sydney, N. S. W., state that the French commandant of New Hebrides has been ordered by his government to evacuate the islands in January. A French company is buying land from the natives of New Hebrides for the purpose of establishing trading stations.

Death of a Fenian Leader.

NEW YORK, December 24.—Dennis Corbett, one of the most prominent and active members of the Clan na Gael, died yesterday morning at his residence in this city. He had suffered for nearly two months with cancer on the tongue. Corbett was one of the Fenians who fought to invade Canada.

Parnell Better.

LONDON, December 24.—Parnell will spend the Christmas holidays with Mrs. O'Shea at Eltham, in Kent. Parnell's health is much improved. He will probably address his constituents in Cork in January.

Frozen to Death in Texas.

FORT WORTH, December 24.—Reports received from the Panhandle tonight state that eight persons were frozen to death in Carson county during the recent cold spell.

Settling for Two per Cent.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 24.—Creditors of Wm. Dietz & Co. and John Rosenfeld & Sons, of the Call, met on the latter's deed which released them from all claims upon payment of two per cent. The terms were accepted by a committee of creditors, and the deed will be executed. The liabilities of the firm are $1,000,000, and the assets will come very near that amount. Rosenfeld & Sons' liabilities are $300,000, and assets $200,000. It is expected all will receive a little over two per cent of their claims.

Congratulating the Pope.

BALTIMORE, December 24.—The letter sent by the Catholic hierarchy of America congratulating the pope on the silver jubilee anniversary of his ordination was presented to the pope today. It was signed by Cardinal Gibbons and all the Bishops and Archbishops of America. It is highly eulogistic, and one paragraph reads: "Deeply in truth, were we to regret, most holy father, when lately, pursued with such wisdom and success, you assisted the heaven born majesty of your see by reconciling the discordant rulers and people of Europe. It seems to us that those happy times had almost returned when a Roman pontiff was looked upon as the father of all princes and of all nations who glory in the Christian name."

French Patriots.

PARIS, December 24.—M. Des Clouds, judge of the court of accounts, has been elected president of the Patriotic League. It is announced that the league will in the future abstain from concerning itself with the internal policy of France, and that it will have only one flag, the national emblem, and one motto, "Patrie."

Nearly Ready to Start.

PHILADELPHIA, December 24.—Dispatches from Port Richmond state that the Reading strikers are nearly ready to start their engines. Only a few more men are needed to complete the crews. Nevertheless, it will be some time before the strike is declared off. Many of the men who struck are anxious to return to work, and it is expected that they will be given their old positions.

Cost Tied Up.

PHILADELPHIA, December 24.—During the twenty-four hours that have elapsed since the strike was declared on the Reading railroad, it is estimated that the company has lost $100,000. Not a single coal train has passed through the city from the Schuylkill region for Philadelphia or Port Richmond. Thousands of cars are tied up, and the company is losing on siding where the fires have been drawn from the engines.

A Coal War on Hand.

NEW YORK, December 24.—Just now it looks as if there was going to be a red hot war in a few days between the Cigar Makers' International union and tenement house cigar manufacturers. There is a rumor afloat that manufacturers will not only return to the tenement house system but that a general reduction will be made about the first of the year, and that the union is prepared to fight both. It is feared now there may be a general strike, and that thousands of cigar makers will be soon out of work and dependent upon the union. The New England Society of New York, at its anniversary dinner in honor of the landing of the Pilgrims, usually makes one speaker outside of the city in order to introduce a new element. In determining the selection of the speaker the section of the country and oratorical abilities are influential. Last year Editor Grady, of the Atlanta Constitution, was the one selected. This year the distinguished honor fell to the Honorable E. O. Wolcott, of Denver. The Denver News published his speech without the punctuations of applause. This speech seems to have been the speech of the evening, which is saying a good deal because for years these dinners of the New England society have been renowned for the uniform good quality of the speeches. There is hardly an American statesman in the last fifty years, of position, who has not been invited to speak on this occasion, and felt it an honor. The reception Mr. Wolcott received is not less an honor to the state than to himself. It will give him the reputation as an orator in the east which he had already won here.

The republican platform of 1884 is a very [illegible] one to stand on in the present discussion over the tariff. It says:

The [illegible] party has failed to [illegible] the [illegible] of the burden of [illegible] by a wise reduction of the surplus.

[illegible] party has [illegible] to [illegible] of the evil and to [illegible]

Power of our words do [illegible] have not the [illegible] to this [illegible] form and may be [illegible] at [illegible] time. The [illegible] party has [illegible] forced into an attitude of opposition to all efforts to reduce the [illegible] This [illegible] not have [illegible] so if any bill of this character [illegible] have [illegible] the [illegible] were where [illegible] with us, like [illegible] and Allison are [illegible] the leaders of the party. They [illegible] sat down on the [illegible] states when the question of adjournment [illegible] up. During the most trying [illegible] of our national history, when the republican party has been in power, never has been accustomed to take its usual holiday recess and it was therefore very hypocritical in Gorman to allow it to make a point about the present session, especially since the republican party in 1884 pledged itself to a new election, and this [illegible] like [illegible] these small fry politicians have shown any interest in keeping the pledge. It is rather a wonderful fact, but it is the truth nevertheless, and for the sake of party improvement should be told that it took a special message of the president to wake up the republicans to a proper sense of honorably observing the pledge given to the people of this country in 1884.

The European Situation.

BERLIN, December 21.—[Copyright 1887 by the New York association.]—If war really is the object to be attained, official anticipations will be received and military events will be ignored. What in the past few days it has become the settled conviction of the diplomatic circles that the czar's pacific tendencies have been overborne by the pan Slavic faction, and that he is now under the control of the war party, the leaders of which are ready to precipitate a war by some act of provocation, confident that without the czar's [illegible]

The return of General Von Schweinitz, the German ambassador to St. Petersburg, was hoped to be a favorable indication of the fate of war. The conference between Von Schweinitz and M. De Giers, the Russian prime minister on Tuesday last, had a contrary result. What passed during the interview has not transpired. The chancellor in Berlin and increased the irritation of the czar's government towards the czar's minister. M. De Giers appears to have abandoned his policy of peace and to have thrown his influence on the side of the military party. He is reported as telling General Von Schweinitz that the czar is entirely desirous of peace, but is unable to [illegible] the [illegible] of publicity in the course Russia endeavors to obtain, the just claims of her partizans in the Balkan campaign. Apart from what transpired at the interview with General Von Schweinitz, M. de Giers has complained recently at diplomatic receptions in St. Petersburg of Count Kalnoky's language in reference to Russia, declaring that [illegible] every means [illegible] to reinforce her troops on the frontier.

An ominous indication of the extreme tension of the situation is the bellicose tone of the St. Petersburg papers towards Austria. There is no further pretence of concealment as to what are the Russian aims. Bulgaria, the papers say, must be [illegible] Austria must be forced to evacuate Bosnia and Herzegovina.

It is a notable feature of the article in the Novoe Vremya, Moscow and other Russian papers that a war with Austria would not necessarily involve Germany. An inspired article in the Graschdanin states that the Russian government has obtained the full assurance that the terms of the treaty of alliance leave Germany free not to interfere unless Austria is threatened with a collapse which would involve material losses. This is a cold fleer to the official press of Vienna and Pesth, which treats the war question as a common matter between Austria and Germany. The Berlin official view coincides with that of the Austrian press, and the closeness of the intimacy between the war departments is clearly points to concerted plans of military action in the event of war.

Since his conference with M. De Giers General Von Schweinitz has been received by the czar, who made the reception a friendly, cordial conversation.

The report that Count Von Wolkenstein, the Austrian ambassador at St. Petersburg, has received assurances from De Giers that the movements of troops had ceased, is emphatically denied from Vienna tonight. The Russian government has not ventured to make any statement either to the Germans or to the Austrians and assures regarding the position on the frontier. Reconnoitering parties on both sides have been in the face of the foes. During the past week Russian cavalry and light artillery have been pushed forward to Novo Brest, only [illegible] for instance to Mlochowa, a few kilometres from Chelm, and to Chlakowice, a station on the Terespol and Dombois railway.

A careful estimate in the Post gives Russia eight and a half army corps with the frontier districts of Warsaw, Wilna and Kieff, with 120 field batteries and a combined Austrian and German force of five and a half army corps with 84 batteries. Reinforcements are known to be proceeding in every direction.

The confidence of the favor of [illegible] shown by the crown prince has enabled Dr. Mackenzie to postpone his return to San Remo until Tuesday.

The crown prince's reply to this was that so long as he drew breath he would not surrender his rights or his duties. The letter of the grand duke of Baden to the [illegible] expressing sympathy for the crown prince was [illegible] to counteract the intrigues of the Prince William clique.

The Tagblatt goes to the length of suggesting that influences are being made to induce the crown prince to undertake operations in order that a feud between him may be buried and end the [illegible] embarrassment. The National Zeitung refers to the insinuation in terms of indignation, but the accusations of the Tagblatt are known to have a solid foundation of fact. The defeat of the intrigue has strengthened the court opposition to Prince Bismarck.

Count Perponcher chief marshal of the imperial household who recently sent in his resignation, still remains at his post, taking advantage of the emperor's [illegible] refusal to accept the resignation. None of the intended changes in the household will be effected.

The doctors have decided not to change the diet of the crown prince. The crown prince is permitted a wide range of food and a limited quantity of sweets.

The Strasburg Land and Zeitung states that the prosecuting of Kauffman, the German frontier guard who fired upon a party of French sportsmen at Rouy-sur-Pleine in September last, has not been abandoned.
